Ax Is Facing Big Salaries

BULLETIN
COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—Smothering weak opposition which sprang up in the House this morning forced Gov. George White forced his salary cutting toward victory in three skirmishes today in the fees and salaries committee while Republicans of the senate launched a separate fight.

Republicans lined up with Democrats in the House committee to cast overwhelming votes favoring passage of the Governor's bill to slash salaries of state employees, county elective officers and election officials.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—Hit the big fellows hard but save the small-salaried employees. This sentiment was developing rapidly today among Ohio legislators as they studied plans for balancing governmental budgets during the coming two years by reducing the compensation paid to public officials and employees.

Insisting that the "American standard of living must be maintained," a considerable number of legislators, principally in the house, stoutly opposed any reduction of wages paid to public employees, state or county, receiving less than $1,000 a year.

WOULD EXEMPT SOME
Taking the position that the 12,984 state employees who received less than $1,000 annually should be totally exempted from all salary-cutting, three house members today confronted the house committee on fees and salaries with proposed amendments altering the scale of reductions endorsed by Governor George White.

The Governor's bill, affecting the 20,545 state officials and employees, provides for the following reductions: Five per cent on the first $1,000 or less, 10 per cent on the next $4,000, or fraction thereof, and 15 per cent on all sums exceeding $5,000 a year.

Rep. John Caren, Columbus, Democrat, wants the scale of reductions to be as follows: Five per cent on all salaries ranging from $1,500 to $2,500 a year; 10 per cent on those from $2,500 to $3,500; 15 per cent on those from $3,500 to $5,000, and at least 20, possibly 25 per cent on all salaries of $5,000 or more.

A proposal that an annual saving of approximately $2,500,000 a year be realized.

ROOSEVELT TO MEET NORRIS

Democrat Seeking Progressive
Votes Through West;
Feels Confident.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Sept. 28.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt carried his appeal for the progressive support of the country into friendly territory today.

From California where he pointedly courted the support of Senator Hiram Johnson's friends, through New Mexico and the southwest, where he went out of his way to welcome the progressive support of Senator Bronson S. Cutting, the Democratic nominee, today invaded Nebraska, the home of the most insurgent of all Republican insurgents, Senator George W. Norris.

BOLT'S PARTY
Senator Norris has frankly bolted the Republican national ticket and is openly supporting Governor Roosevelt, just as four years ago he supported Al Smith.

Late today, at McCook, Neb., Gov. Roosevelt will stop off to pay his respects to the veteran Nebraska insurgent. A meeting has been arranged there at which Gov. Roosevelt will publicly voice his appreciation of Senator Norris' support.

Probably no presidential candidate, certainly none since Theodore Roosevelt, has campaigned the west so vigorously in the progressive cause as has the Democratic nominee on this trip.

MILLIONS DAMAGE

Picturesque Island Present
Sad Picture

SAN JUAN, Sept. 28.—With all relief agencies mobilized, Puerto Rico today faced the task of undoing, so far as possible, the damage wrought by a hurricane that swept over the island, killing hundreds and causing property losses running into millions of dollars.

Governor James R. Beverley told International News Service the known dead already reached 200 persons and that 1,000 at least had been injured.

He said he expected the figures to increase rather than diminish. Puerto Rico, famed for its beauty, presented a sad spectacle after the storm had spent its fury. Where once had been beauty on all sides, there remained only devastation and wreckage.

1928 RECALLED

Residents surveying the scene recalled the famous storm of San Felipe in 1928, when the island was reduced to utter desolation.

And in sorrow they named this new hurricane the San Eusebio. For it was on the first day of that saint that the storm first began its fatal journey from the heat-ridden region of the Equator.

Efforts were begun immediately under the guidance of an emergency committee to find food, shelter and medical attention for the homeless and injured.

BLACKMAIL CHARGED 2 IN JAIL

One Ashville Youth Admits Charge; Other Denies Hoover's Claim

SAYS $3000 GONE

Third Person in Case Missing Several Weeks

A sensational Ashville blackmail case came to a head Wednesday morning in the Pickaway-co jail when one youth pleaded guilty and a second denied a charge filed by Francis "Cap" Hoover, 72, widely known Ashville man, that money had been obtained from him with threats of bodily harm.

The youths in jail are Chester Maupin, 17, who admitted the charge, and Howard Chamberlain, 18, who denied his guilt. Lester C. Chamberlain, about 50, father of one of the youths, is being sought over this state and several others for being the principal character in the extortion plot which resulted in Mr. Hoover losing nearly $3,000, the greater portion of which was allegedly taken by the missing man.

CUSTER ON JOB

Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer has been conducting a wide-spread investigation of the blackmail charge and has been the center in the search to arrest the other Chamberlain.

Both Maupin and young Chamberlain were bound over to the grand jury, each under $2,500 bonds when they were given preliminary hearings before J. S. Hoover, Harrison-twp justice of the peace.

Young Chamberlain, who is a student at Ashville, received $200 from Maupin after threatening him with bodily harm, and Maupin, in his hearing, confessed that he received $150.

The elder Chamberlain, Mr. Hoover says, received $1,000 at one time several weeks ago and had received other money payments to that.

WROTE TWO NOTES

Two notes were written to Mr. Hoover said, both by Maupin and one of them has been included in the affidavit drawn up by Prosecuting Attorney Emmett L. Crist's office.

The note said:
"I've saved you a lot of trouble and I am the only one that is keeping mother from sending you away and I could tell about you being on the bridge waiting for Howard and you know Mr. Chamberlain was mad. Well I know you gave Howard $200 to go to housekeeping with so when you give me $150 I'll call it square and I want it by Wednesday night."

"Signed," "Chester M." The three, the two Chamberlains and Maupin, blamed him of committing sodomy, Hoover said, and he paid them money to keep them from exposing him, according to the officers. The affair has been going on practically the entire summer.

WROTE RELEASE

Mr. Hoover has in his possession, he asserts, a note from the elder Chamberlain promising not to bother him anymore after the payment of $1,000 which Mr. Hoover claims he gave the man.

Chamberlain left Ashville when he learned Hoover might seek protection from the law. No trace of his whereabouts has been found although Deputy Custer, with constables of Harrison-twp have been working diligently on the case.

Both young Chamberlain and Maupin have been in the county jail since last Friday pending developments in the case which came Wednesday morning when Hoover filed the charges.

ROOSEVELT TO MEET NORRIS

Democrat Seeking Progressive
Votes Through West;
Feels Confident.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Sept. 28.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt carried his appeal for the progressive support of the country into friendly territory today.

From California where he pointedly courted the support of Senator Hiram Johnson's friends, through New Mexico and the southwest, where he went out of his way to welcome the progressive support of Senator Bronson S. Cutting, the Democratic nominee, today invaded Nebraska, the home of the most insurgent of all Republican insurgents, Senator George W. Norris.

BOLTS PARTY

Senator Norris has frankly bolted the Republican national ticket and is openly supporting Governor Roosevelt, just as four years ago he supported Al Smith.

Late today, at McCook, Neb., Gov. Roosevelt will stop off to pay his respects to the veteran Nebraska insurgent. A meeting has been arranged there at which Gov. Roosevelt will publicly voice his appreciation of Senator Norris' support.

Probably no presidential candidate, certainly none since Theodore Roosevelt, has campaigned the west so vigorously in the progressive cause as has the Democratic nominee on this trip.

Series Begins

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Charlie Ruffing and Guy Bush were the opposing pitchers when the world series got underway here today, the former for the Yankees and the latter for the invading Chicago Cubs.

TOKYO, Sept. 28.—Two Yale University undergraduates, whose names were withheld, were arrested by police at Hiroshima today on charges of photographing fortified zones and possessing maps allegedly showing the location of soldiers en route to Manchuria.

The students were released after lengthy questioning.

The arrests recalled the recent activity of police in Kobe and Osaka, seized photographs taken by officials of the National City bank of New York, on the grounds that they were inimical to Japan's military defenses. The incident caused diplomatic protests.

MILLIONS DAMAGE

Picturesque Island Present Sad Picture

SAN JUAN, Sept. 28.—With all relief agencies mobilized, Puerto Rico today faced the task of undoing, so far as possible, the damage wrought by a hurricane that swept over the island, killing hundreds and causing property losses running into millions of dollars.

Governor James R. Beverley told International News Service the known dead already reached 200 persons and that 1,000 at least had been injured.

He said he expected the figures to increase rather than diminish. Puerto Rico, famed for its beauty, presented a sad spectacle after the storm had spent its fury. Where once had been beauty on all sides, there remained only devastation and wreckage.

1928 RECALLED

Residents surveying the scene recalled the famous storm of San Felipe in 1928, when the island was reduced to utter desolation.

And in sorrow they named this new hurricane the San Eusebio. For it was on the first day of this saint that the storm first began its fatal journey from the heat-ridden region of the Equator.

Efforts were begun immediately under the guidance of an emergency committee to find food, shelter and medical attention for the homeless and injured.

BLACKMAIL CHARGED; 2 IN JAIL

One Asheville Youth Admits Charge, Other Denies Hoover's Claim

SAYS $3000 GONE

Third Person in Case
Missing Several Weeks

A sensational Asheville blackmail case came to a head Wednesday morning in the Pickaway-co jail when one youth pleaded guilty and a second denied a charge filed by Francis "Cap" Hoover, 72, widely known Asheville man, that money had been obtained from him with threats of bodily harm.

The youths in jail are Chester Maupin, 17, who admitted the charge, and Howard Chamberlain, 18, who denied his guilt. Lanson C. Chamberlain, about 50, father of one of the youths, is being sought over this state and several others for being the principal character in the extortion plot which resulted in Mr. Hoover losing nearly $3,000, the greater portion of which was allegedly taken by the missing man.

CUSTER ON JOB

Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer has been conducting a wide-spread investigation of the blackmail charge and has been the center in the search to arrest the elder Chamberlain.

Both Maupin and young Chamberlain were bound over to the grand jury, each under $2,500 bond when they were given preliminary hearings before J. S. Hoover, Harrison-twp justice of the peace.

Young Chamberlain, according to Francis Hoover who signed the affidavits, received $200 from him after threatening him with bodily harm, and Maupin, in his hearing, confessed that he received $150.

The elder Chamberlain, Mr. Hoover says, received $1,000 at one time several weeks ago and had received other money previous to that.

WROTE TWO NOTES

Two notes were written to him, Mr. Hoover said, both by Maupin and one of them has been included in the affidavit drawn up by Prosecuting Attorney Emmitt L. Crist's office.

The note said: "I've saved you a lot of trouble and I am the only one that is keeping mother from sending you away and I could tell about you being on the bridge waiting for Howard and you know Mr. Chamberlain was mad. Well I know you gave Howard $200 to go to housekeeping with so when you give me $150 I'll call it square and I want it by Wednesday night."

"Signed, 'Chester M.'"

The three, the two Chamberlains and Maupin, blamed him of committing sodomy, Hoover said, and he paid them money to keep them from exposing him, according to the officers. The affair has been going on practically the entire summer.

WROTE RELEASE

Mr. Hoover has in his possession, he asserts, a note from the elder Chamberlain promising not to bother him anymore after the payment of $1,000, which Mr. Hoover claims he gave the man.

Chamberlain left Asheville when he learned Hoover might seek protection from the law. No trace of his whereabouts has been found although Deputy Custer, with constables of Harrison-twp have been working diligently on the case.

Both young Chamberlain and Maupin have been in the county jail since last Friday pending developments in the case which came Wednesday morning when Hoover filed the charges.

Can May Cause Delay In Series

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Maybe the world series of 1932 will make its debut at the Yankee stadium this afternoon and maybe it will do nothing of the sort.

"I have not yet made up my mind about the matter," declared the weather forecaster, soon after the crack of a murky dawn. "I've done quite a bit of jiffing around with this instrument and that contraption and sometimes it looks like rain to me and sometimes it does not look like rain."

"Furthermore, that hurricane they had in the West Indies is headed this way and I have had my scouts out to learn just when it is due to arrive here, but I have not yet heard from my scouts, they being outside the 12 mile limit and heavens knows what they are doing."

GOTHAM UNEXCITED

But rain or shine the Yankee management continues to advertise that choice pasteboards still can be had in the stadium that could seat about $5,000, but the wild wish to see the home towners tangle with the Cubs is nowhere manifest.

Gotham is taking the classic with a yawn.

But Guy Bush isn't taking it that way, especially with weather conditions as they are.

"I gotta have a hot spell, hot, hot, hot," shrieked Mr. Bush. "I ain't no Eskimo pitcher. A blazing sun is what I need. Gimme that and I'll make those Yanks swing like trap-pole performers. But if it ain't hot, yow."

Mr. Bush, it may be explained, is a pitcher for the Cubs and has been slated to perform in the inaugural.

Marse Joe McCarthy, pilot of the Yankees, is not yet decided on who'll sling for his side,—weather permitting.

YANKS CONFIDENT

"Maybe it'll be Ruffing," he quoths. "If it is not Ruffing it will be somebody else. I have plenty of somebody else's on this ball club. And my boys who tote around bats tell me they don't care whether Bush and his whole family, or Grimes and his whole family, or any other Cub moundsman and his whole family toss horseshoes at them. They have their minds made up to knock fences into splinters and rip huge holes in the grandstands and bleachers and they can't recall the name of anybody from Chicago who can change their mental attitude, amen."

Cholly Grimm, who manages the Cubs, spent a busy morning. He was cranking up his famous banjo

"Whenever we win, I celebrate by playing a few tunes," explained Mr. Grimm. "I had talks with the boys yesterday and today and that is why I am now getting the banjo ready for a little banging around tonight—that is, if it doesn't rain. If so, then it will be okay for tomorrow night because when I tune a banjo it stays tuned for several days at least."

RYAN SMEARED

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 28.—Jess Petty for Minneapolis and Johnny Murphy for the Newark Bears were groomed today to pitch in the second of the little world's series games, to be played tomorrow night.

The attendance was 6,339 with total receipts of $8,951.

Ohio College Squads To Face Big Ten Teams

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—Ohio's college football teams will go big-league this week when three members of the Buckeye conference will step outside their usual circle to tackle opponents from that part of the gridiron upper crust known as the Big Ten.

Ohio Wesleyan will invade Ohio Stadium to meet Sam Willaman's Ohio State team, Ohio university will play Indiana university for the third time in four seasons and Miami will go to Urbana, Ill., for a game with the University of Illinois.

The clash between the Western conference and the Buckeye conference on three fronts will attract the attention of football fans all over the middle-west.

SETTLE 2 QUESTIONS

Ohio Wesleyan's battle against the Willaman Buckeyes will settle two football questions of importance to Ohio fans. Were the Wesleyan Bishops holding back in their game Saturday when they defeated Wilmington only 20 to 0? Has Ohio State the powerful backfield for which it is now being touted?

The stands at Delaware Saturday in the Wilmington game were dotted with Ohio State scouts anxious to see what Coach George Gauthier would bring to Columbus this week.

For Miami the game at Illinois will be all-important, although defeat for the Ohioans is generally conceded. It will be the debut of his Miami career for Coach Frank Wilton, who was brought to the Oxford institution from California.

Ohio university, champions of Buckeye conference, mauled Rio Grande, 19 to 0, last week. The game with Indiana should be one of the first real football battles of the year.

Nearly every college team in the state will be in action Friday or Saturday of this week, the following program having been arranged:

Wittenberg at John Carroll, Denison at Western Reserve, Wooster at Ashland, Findlay at Heidelberg, Bluffton at Ohio Northern, Hiram at Kent, Capital at Toledo, Otterbein at Oberlin, Rio Grande at Cedarville, Georgetown at Cincinnati, Bowling Green at Mount Union, and Centre at St. Xavier.

Adelphi boys and girls came here to play baseball last Friday. The Adelphi girls won by a score of 14-1 and the boys tied 3-3.

The local P. T. A. held their regular meeting at the school auditorium last Wednesday evening. Part of the program was a short business meeting to elect officers but as the crowd was unusually small, that was postponed until the next meeting.

The Laurelville boys and girls are to play baseball at Saltcreek this coming Friday afternoon.

PICKAWAY-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

Our American government class, under the direction of Miss Wertman, is studying election laws preparatory to conducting the election of the athletic association officers. They will prepare the rules and supervise the election. Candidates will be nominated by petition, ballots will be prepared, campaigns will be waged, etc. In other words, this election will be a practical project carried out as closely as possible after the plan of our regular county and township elections.

A new department in our school this year is an elementary course in printing. Mr. Althaus has loaned us his printing press and equipment and has a class of twelve students, each of whom will work two or three periods per week for one fourth unit of credit. We plan to do a great deal of our own job printing.

take place at Memorial Hall under the supervision of the local post's auxiliary.

The public is invited to this banquet and will be given more information later concerning tickets. Sunday morning schools for officers will be held under experienced Legionnaires. By the time of this conference all units will have elected new officers and these schools are to train them for their work.

COLE ON PROGRAM

On Sunday afternoon a mammoth open meeting will be held in the Hall where Ralph Cole, department commander, Paul Herbert, immediate past department commander, and numerous other prominent ex-soldiers will speak. The real work of the American Legion, the ideals, plans and expectations of the organization will be stressed at this open session.

Special efforts will be made to have the city decorated for the event. Reed Shafer is in charge of the decoration committee and is now making plans for the work. Merchants who decorate for Pumpkin Show are asked to keep their decorations up until after the Legion event.

The board of directors of the Chapter, after the meeting Tuesday evening, decided to give the local American Legion post $25 with which to help decorate for the conference.

After the Legion part of the program was completed Dr. Watts called upon Mayor B. T. Hedges, president ex-officio of the Pumpkin Show society, to introduce members of the organization. He called upon T. F. Jeffries in charge of Department No. 1, the financial department of the society, who after a few words relative the financing of the show called upon T. O. Gilliland, chairman of the soliciting committee, and Mack Farrett Jr., secretary, in charge of placing concessions.

K. J. Herrmann, in charge of Pumpkin Show advertising, was unable to be at the meeting because of his recent operation and Mr. Jeffries reported that while convalescing at Berger hospital Mr. Herrmann had completed the advertising work for the Pumpkin Show.

Lee Shaner, in charge of Department No. 2, called on Harry Lane, chairman of the poultry display, and Stanley Lewis, in charge of swine, who also explained the county 4-H club work displays.

Experts predict a bright future for this pretty miss, who already has planted her dainty foot on fame's ladder. She is Miss Helen Waterhouse, of Providence, R. Bob Brehmer made a few remarks concerning "Beantown" although he also promised that the display of Pumpkins would be as good as ever. Earl Lutz was called on concerning the industrial parade and said that since he is now out of direct activity, being only an assistant, he does not know just what is taking place. He said there will be a parade, however, with a number of persons having promised to take part with floats. Thirty-four persons attended the meeting.

In Fajardo and Tao Alta, it was said, few if any houses were left standing. The same fate was reported suffered by many smaller inland towns.

CROPS ARE LOST

Planters throughout the country faced a long period of economic impoverishment when it became evident the entire fruit crop and much of the coffee crop had been ruined by the howling rushing winds. Early reports placed the fruit crop loss at $7,000,000.

Insular funds were to be placed today in the hands of the emergency committee, but it was generally felt by officials here they would not suffice for the work to be done. Appeals have gone out for outside aid.

Later, it was said, a definite relief program would be worked out and set in motion, but that this could not be accomplished until the full extent of the catastrophe was known.

Instructing all government offices to open and function today, Governor Beverly issued an appeal to his people to remain courageous in the face of disaster and carry on.

"We must proceed as if nothing had happened," he said. "Everyone must work."

Architect's Qualifications

To be successful the architect must have an intimate knowledge of a score or more of the building trades; of values, qualities and uses of building materials; of plumbing, ventilating, heating and wiring; of decoration, furnishing and lighting; of landscaping, community design and city planning; and of construction engineering and business management.

Indian Religious Rite

Pahos are feathered sticks which certain Indian tribes use in their religious rituals. A member of these tribes never prays without first planting around himself, or on his altar, or before his shrine a number of pahos. As the birds that soar to the highest heavens, so may his petitions be feathered and winged to the ears of the gods.

Fish Respond to Colors

Color plays a part in the lives of reptiles and fish. Iguanas prefer yellow foodstuffs and are attracted by yellow flowers, while fish are more readily caught when baits of certain colors are used.

Ohio College Squads To Face Big Ten Teams

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—Ohio's college football teams will go big-league this week when three members of the Buckeye conference will step outside their usual circle to tackle opponents from that part of the gridiron upper crust known as the Big Ten.

Ohio Wesleyan will invade Ohio Stadium to meet Sam Williamson's Ohio State team, Ohio university will play Indiana university for the third time in four seasons and Miami will go to Urbana, Ill., for a game with the University of Illinois.

The clash between the Western conference and the Buckeye conference on three fronts will attract the attention of football fans all over the middle-west.

SETTLE 2 QUESTIONS

Ohio Wesleyan's battle against the Willaman Buckeyes will settle two football questions of importance to Ohio fans: Were the Wesleyan Bishops holding back in their game Saturday when they defeated Wilmington only 20 to 0? Has Ohio State the powerful backfield for which it is now being touted?

The stands at Delaware Saturday in the Wilmington game were dotted with Ohio State scouts anxious to see what Coach George Gauthier would bring to Columbus this week.

For Miami the game at Illinois will be all-important, although defeat for the Ohioans is generally conceded. It will be the debut of his Miami career for Coach Frank Wilton, who was brought to the Oxford institution from California.

Ohio university, champions of Buckeye conference, mailed Rio Grande, 19 to 0, last week. The game with Indiana should be one of the first real football battles of the year.

Nearly every college team in the state will be in action Friday or Saturday of this week, the following program having been arranged:

Wittenberg at John Carroll, Denison at Western Reserve, Wooster at Ashland, Findlay at Heidelberg, Bluffton at Ohio Northern, Hiram at Kent, Capital at Toledo, Otterbein at Oberlin, Rio Grande at Cedarville, Georgetown at Cincinnati, Bowling Green at Mount Union, and Centre at St. Xavier.

SALT CREEK-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

D. L. Buchanan, the county superintendent, was a visitor of Saltcreek School, Monday forenoon. He visited all of the rooms and the various classes, and seemed to be well pleased with work that is being out.

Miss Kuhn's room is being decorated with Indian Posters and other drawings. They are planning to study about Indians in the future.

Adelphi boys and girls came here to play baseball last Friday. The Adelphi girls won by a score of 14-1 and the boys tied 3-3.

The local P. T. A. held their regular meeting at the school auditorium last Wednesday evening. Part of the program was a short business meeting to elect officers but as the crowd was unusually small, that was postponed until the next meeting.

The Laureville boys and girls are to play baseball at Saltcreek this coming Friday afternoon.

PICKAWAY-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

Our American government class, under the direction of Miss Wertman, is studying election laws preparatory to conducting the election of the athletic association officers. They will prepare the rules and supervise the election. Candidates will be nominated by petition, ballots will be prepared, campaigns will be waged, etc. In other words, this election will be a practical project carried out as closely as possible after the plan of our regular county and township elections.

A new department in our school this year is an elementary course in printing. Mr. Althaus has loaned us his printing press and equipment and has a class of twelve students, each of whom will work two or three periods per week for one fourth unit of credit. We plan to do a great deal of our own job printing.

Our orchestra will play for the Logan Elm Grange program Friday night. The public is invited to this program which will consist of a one-act play and several musical numbers. Admission is free. Come and have a good time with your neighbors.

take place at Memorial Hall under the supervision of the local post's auxiliary.

The public is invited to this banquet and will be given more information later concerning tickets.

Sunday morning schools for officers will be held under experienced Legionnaires. By the time of this conference all units will have elected new officers and these schools are to train them for their work.

COLE ON PROGRAM

On Sunday afternoon a mammoth open meeting will be held in the Hall where Ralph Cole department commander; Paul Herbert, immediate past department commander, and numerous other prominent ex-soldiers will speak. The real work of the American Legion, the ideals, plans and expectations of the organization will be stressed at this open session.

Special efforts will be made to have the city decorated for the event. Reed Shafer is in charge of the decoration committee and is now making plans for the work. Merchants who decorate for Pumpkin Show are asked to keep their decorations up until after the Legion event.

The board of directors of the Chamber, after the meeting Tuesday evening, decided to give the local American Legion post $25 with which to help decorate for the conference.

After the Legion part of the program was completed Dr. Watts called upon Mayor E. T. Hedges, president ex-officio of the Pumpkin Show society, to introduce members of the organization. He called upon T. F. Jeffries in charge of Department No. 1, the financial department of the society, who after a few words relative to the financing of the show called upon T. O. Gilliland, chairman of the soliciting committee, and Mack Parrett Jr., secretary, in charge of placing concessions. K. J. Herrmann, in charge of Pumpkin Show advertising, was unable to be at the meeting because of his recent operation and Mr. Jeffries reported that while convalescing at Berger hospital Mr. Herrmann had completed the advertising work for the Pumpkin Show.

Lee Shaner, in charge of Department No. 2, called on Harry Lane, chairman of the poultry display, and Stanley Lewis, in charge of swine, who also explained the county 4-H club work displays.

IN FRIEDMAN ROOM

Lawrence Johnson, director of Department No. 6, reported that the fancy work will be in the Friedman store room on W. Main-st., and that the flower show, also under his direction, would be on

Youngest Champion

Experts predict a bright future for this pretty miss, who already has planted her dainty foot on fame's ladder. She is Miss Helen Waterhouse, of Providence, R. Bob Brehmer made a few remarks concerning "Beantown" although he also promised that the display of Pumpkins would be as good as ever. Earl Lutz was called on concerning the industrial parade and said that since he is now out of direct activity, being only an assistant, he does not know just what is taking place. He said there will be a parade, however, with a number of persons having promised to take part with floats.

Thirty-four persons attended the meeting.

task of relief would be a gigantic one.

In Fajardo and Tao Alta, it was said, few if any houses were left standing. The same fate was reported suffered by many smaller inland towns.

CROPS ARE LOST

Planters throughout the countryside faced a long period of economic impoverishment when it became evident the entire fruit crop and much of the coffee had been ruined by the howling rushing winds. Early reports placed the fruit crop loss at $7,000,000.

Insular funds were to be placed today in the hands of the emergency committee, but it was generally felt by officials here they would not suffice for the work to be done. Appeals have gone out for outside aid.

Later, it was said, a definite relief program would be worked out and set in motion, but that this could not be accomplished until the full extent of the catastrophe was known.

Instructing all government offices to open and function today, Governor Beverly issued an appeal to his people to remain courageous in the face of disaster and carry on.

Architect's Qualifications

To be successful the architect must have an intimate knowledge of a score or more of the building trades; of values, qualities and uses of building materials; of plumbing, ventilating, heating and wiring; of decoration, furnishing and finishing; of landscaping, community design and city planning, and of construction engineering and business management.

Indian Religious Rite

Pahos are feathered sticks which certain Indian tribes use in their religious rituals. A member of these tribes never prays without first planting around himself, or on his altar, or before his shrine a number of pahos. As the birds that soar to the highest heavens, so may his petitions be feathered and winged to the ears of the gods.

EACH MOVE IN OHIO IS WATCHED BY U.S.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23.—Washington, New York and Chicago headquarters of the major parties watching Ohio's every political move for a clue to the outcome of the presidential election in November.

Although "As Maine goes so goes the nation," since 1886 only one president of the United States—Grover Cleveland—has been chosen without the 24 electoral votes of Ohio.

Moreover, the single recommendation that "he can carry Ohio" has in many instances been sufficient to make a man a serious contender for the presidency. That has been true for 30 years.

PIVOTAL STATE

Political experience having taught them that Ohio is one of the leading pivotal states in the Union, Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley and Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, chief adviser for President Hoover, are in close contact with every campaign activity in state headquarters of the two parties here.

Brown, a native Buckeye, has already been here several times, surveying the situation, and is coming back. Farley was here on Aug. 20 with Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee. No other state in the country can claim so much attention at this stage of the campaign.

The possibility that President Hoover will come here for a speech is being widely discussed as a retaliation against the visit of Governor Roosevelt.

History shows Ohio has never escaped the close surveillance of the politicians. But a new interest attaches to Ohio this year. The state that cradled the Anti-Saloon league voted unexpectedly wet in the May primaries. Experts believe that may be a sign of a complete reversal in all Ohio politics.

SWITCH TO DEMOS

Furthermore, after voting Republican and for Hoover in 1928, the state elected a Democratic state administration in 1930. The presidential vote in 1928 had been Hoover, 1,627,546; Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee, 864,216.

But why has Ohio always been an important political battleground, even without surprise happenings such as occurred in 1890 and the 1932 primary?

Here are the answers as given by state political experts and shrewd governmental observers:

1. In Ohio the political cross-currents of north, south, east and west are fused. Ohio is the middle-ground of the nation. What happens in Ohio is likely to happen in the nation.

2. Ohio has more genuine independent voters than any other state. In Franklin Co., where the state capital sets, at least 25,000 independent voters regularly shift back and forth from one party to the other, according to a well-known political commentator.

3. Ohio, being neither Democratic or Republican, forces its politicians to play a shrewder, smarter game, and political daring is attempted and carried out in Ohio that would never be thought of in any other state.

REPUTATION KNOWN

Ohio's reputation as "the mother of presidents" is well known. It is said that since 1869, seven of the men who have lived in the White House were born in Ohio and six lived there when nominated.

Thus, as Farley and Brown watch the state campaign in Ohio, they may be thinking of a presidential campaign years in the future.

Every governor and every senator from Ohio automatically becomes a presidential possibility because of the necessity of "carrying Ohio." That, too, has been true for three decades. Look back over the list: Senator Warren G. Harding, former Governor James M. Cox, the late Senator Frank E. Willis, Senator Simeon D. Fess, former Senator Alcee Pomerehne, Senator Robert J. Bulkley and Governor George White.

Only Harding reached the White House but every other one was the recipient of a recent presidential boom which was given far more national attention than the booms launched for candidates of other states.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Eager to Go

If you feel sick and the world looks grim, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they don't do it. They merely move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel drowsy and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain no calomel, no arsenic, no mercury, no harmful chemicals, when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Repeat a statement: It is all on the label. © 1932 C. M. Co.

TAXES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISCUSSED IN SCHOOL SERIES

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the first of a series of five feature articles on taxes and local government in Ohio. The next installment will be on county income and expenditures, others will be on township taxes, school district funds and costs, and the municipal tax situation. Each story will be illustrated by a map similar to the above.

Ferretting out how all local governments in 11 Ohio counties obtained and spent a total income of $21,894,000 in 1930, rural economists find that the general property tax and special assessments on real estate accounted for 78.8 per cent of the total revenue income. The tax survey was conducted by H. R. Moore and F. L. Morison, rural economists for the Ohio State University and the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

The 13.3 per cent of the total revenue shown in the top chart as miscellaneous, according to the economists, was made up of the following items: inheritance tax .4 per cent, cigarette dealers' licenses .1 per cent, all other licenses and permits .5 per cent, fines, costs and forfeitures .6 per cent, administrative fees and services 2.3 per cent, interest 1.8 per cent, commercial receipts 3.8 per cent, state and federal aid 3.6 per cent, and all other miscellaneous .2 per cent.

In analyzing how local governments in these 11 Ohio counties spent their money, Moore and Morison found that general government accounted for 7.7 per cent of the total expenditures. This includes general executive and court costs, the salaries and supplies of the various county, township, and municipal offices, cost of elections, and construction and maintenance of buildings used for administrative purposes.

As shown in the lower chart, protection and police accounted for 14.5 per cent of total expenditures. Protection to person and property, the economists point out took 4.9 per cent of all expenditures and includes, such costs as police, sheriff fire protection, dog warden, and county and township bounties on predatory animals. Included under miscellaneous also are health and charity and corrections. Health service consists in the activities of general and city health districts, eradication of bovine tuberculosis, treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis, diphtheria and rabies, sewers and sewage disposal, street cleaning, refuse and garbage disposal. Health services represent 3.2 per cent of total expenditures.

Charity and corrections amount to 4.2 per cent of total expenditures. This includes the cost of county homes, children's homes, outdoor relief, blind relief, mothers' pensions, jails and workhouses, and support of inmates in state institutions. Miscellaneous, which is shown in the chart in combination with protection, includes such items as parks, recreation, memorial buildings, county dishes and several small items unclassified because of insufficient accounting information. Education accounting for 34.6 per cent of total expenditures, includes the operation and outlay costs of all local public schools, the county board of education, and libraries. County fairs and farm-

MUHLENBERG-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

A.; Vocal duet, Blanche and Christena Heeter; Talk, Russell Stebleton, High school principal; Talk, Miss Ruth Schellhase, High school teacher; Reading, Mary Jane Smith; Talk, Miss Helen Betts, music teacher; Talk, John McPherson, 7th and 8th grade teacher; Reading, Gendal Dick; Talk, Miss Florence Hill, 5th and 6th grade teacher; Talk, Miss Dorothy Hill, 3rd and 4th grade teacher; Piano solo, Miss Betts; Talk, Miss Louise Carpenter, 1st and 2nd grade teacher; Talk, Frank Beatty; Vocal solo, Mr. Barton; Talk, Rev. Roese; Piano solo, Miss Schellhase; Talk, Rev. Scott.

After the program everybody had a very enjoyable time getting acquainted with the new teachers.

The next regular meeting of the P. T. A. will be held in the school auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 6, 1932. A program is being prepared for chapel on Monday, Oct. 3rd and a part of the same program will be rendered for the P. T. A. Everybody is invited to attend the meeting.

It was decided at our first P. T. A. meeting to start hot lunch on the first Monday in October.

The music course which was introduced into our school for the first time is progressing very nicely. The boys and girls are being taught to sing in harmony as well as playing the piano. We have three classes in class piano started.

Our first and second baseball games came out disastrously for us as far as the score was concerned. Our first game was with Darby on their grounds and the score was 7 to 0 for the boys and 25 to 3 for the girls. Our second game was played at Jackson. The boys showed some improvement over the game played at Darby and held the Jackson boys to a 8-16 score in favor of Jackson. The girls also showed some improvement over the game with Darby and held the Jackson girls to a score of 15 to 30 in favor of Jackson. Wait until we get the two above named schools on our own grounds and the story may be different. Our next game is with Jackson at Muhlenberg on Friday, Sept. 20. Come out and see your home team play.

Our attendance for the first three weeks has been better this year than it has for several years during the same period of time. We have made arrangements to give a perfect attendance certificate to all pupils who have a perfect attendance for six weeks. This has encouraged all the pupils to have a perfect attendance if possible. The intrinsic value of the card is small but the honor of earning one is the aim of every pupil.

Three new pupils have enrolled in the first grade which makes a total enrollment for that grade of 21. The 1st and 2nd grades have been enjoying the story "Everyday Doughts in Heathville," which Miss Carpenter has been reading to them.

The seventh and eighth grades have been giving interesting as well as educational Current Events every morning for the past week. The seventh and eighth grade boys defeated the seventh and eighth grade boys of Monroe-twp in baseball last Friday; the score was 9 to 3.

The 3rd and 4th grades lost two pupils this week. Clyde and Floyd Darr moved to Jackson-twp.

The sophomore class gave a weiner roast last Friday evening on the banks of Darby creek. All the high school pupils were invited and had the privilege of inviting a guest. All the H. S. teachers were there and all but a few of the pupils. The affair started at 8 o'clock and ended at 10 o'clock. Everyone present had a very enjoyable time.

The fifth and sixth grades have begun work in their arithmetic work books.

All the teachers of Muhlenberg-twp were present at the county teachers' meeting held at Ashville but Mr. McPherson.

William McKinney who graduated from Muhlenberg last year has started at school at Ohio University. He and Lawrence Fullen who graduated from Muhlenberg in 1931 are rooming together. There will probably be some others of the class of '32 attend some higher institution of learning later in the year.

The following teachers of Muhlenberg-twp, attended summer school last summer: John McPherson and Florence Hill, Capital University, Dorothy Hill, Capital University and Miss Helen Betts, Ohio State University.

Mrs. Dorothy Marchington and daughter, Florence May of Adolphus are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Kresel and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Minshall of Adolphus spent Sunday at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Cary Minshall and family.

The Coleman United Brethren Sunday School will hold an all-day picnic and a picnic dinner at the noon hour on Sunday October 2. The service to begin at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Emma Sharpe and son, Henry, arrived a picnic supper at their cottage at the Kellenberger Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Delong Mrs. Amanda Beavers and grandson, James and Major of Chillicothe, were visitors at the homes of Mrs. Laura Delong and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Anderson and Mrs.

Peace, Too, Hath Its Martyrs Heroes in Fight for Progress

Death of Colonel John Slattery Through Overwork on Giant Subway Project Recalls Similar Tragedy of Holland Tunnel Builder.

CLIFFORD W. HOLLAND

The death through overwork, on the completion of his gigantic task of supervising New York's Independent Subway system, of Colonel John R. Slattery makes one wonder if after all peace does not produce more heroes than war. True, the men who in peace-time work in the great Army of Progress, have none of the spectacular battlefield atmosphere that weaves a glamorous aura about the specialist in mass murder, but their work is more enduring and deserving of a more noble chapter in history. From the time of his graduation from West Point Military Academy in 1925, Col. Slattery had built up an enviable career as an army engineer, having worked practically all over the United States. In 1925 he accepted a post as deputy chief engineer on the New York Board of Transportation and supervised the building of the new subway. On its completion he was made general manager of the system. The tragedy is that he had worked so hard on the gigantic task that he did not live to enjoy his reward. Remarkably similar to the case of Colonel Slattery was that of Clifford W. Holland, builder of the vehicular tunnel that links New York and New Jersey. On the night when workmen were to drill through the last layer of rock, the sole remaining obstacle to a clear road under the Hudson River between the two states, Holland died of a heart attack in Battle Creek Sanitarium, Michigan. He, too, had not given a thought to the wear and tear on his constitution while engaged on the great engineering project. But these two heroes in the great army of progress did not die in vain, as have so many on the world's battlefields. Their achievements stand as an enduring testimonial that "peace, too, hath her victories."

Look back over the list: Senator Warren G. Harding, former Governor James M. Cox, the late Senator Frank B. Willis, Senator Simeon D. Fess, former Senator Atlee Pomeroy, Senator Robert J. Bulkley and Governor George White.

Only Harding reached the White House but every other one was the recipient of a recent presidential boom which was given far more national attention than the booms launched for candidates of other states.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Karin to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 10c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

TAXES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISCUSSED IN SCHOOL SERIES

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the first of a series of five feature articles on taxes and local government in Ohio. The next installment will be on county income and expenditures, others will be on township taxes, school district funds and costs, and the municipal tax situation. Each story will be illustrated by a mat similar to the above.

Forgetting out how all local governments in 11 Ohio counties obtained and spent a total income of $21,894,000 in 1930, rural economists find that the general property tax and special assessments on real estate accounted for 78.8 per cent of the total revenue income. The tax survey was conducted by H. R. Moore and F. L. Morison, rural economists for the Ohio State University and the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

The 13.3 per cent of the total revenue shown in the top chart as miscellaneous, according to the economists, was made up of the following items: inheritance tax 4 per cent, cigarette dealers' licenses 1 per cent, all other licenses and permits 5 per cent, fines, costs and forfeitures, 6 per cent, administrative fees and services 2.3 per cent, interest 1.8 per cent, commercial receipts 3.8 per cent, state and federal aid 3.6 per cent, and all other miscellaneous .2 per cent.

In analyzing how local governments in these 11 Ohio counties spent their money, Moore and Morison found that general government accounted for 7.7 per cent of the total expenditures. This includes general executive and court costs, the salaries and supplies of the various county, township, and municipal offices, cost of elections, and construction and maintenance of buildings used for administrative purposes.

As shown in the lower chart, protection and miscellaneous accounted for 14.5 per cent of total expenditures. Protection to person and property, the economists point out took 4.9 per cent of all expenditures and includes, such costs as police, sheriff fire protection, dog warden, and county and township bounds on predatory animals. Included under miscellaneous also are health and charity and corrections. Health service consists in the activities of general and city health districts, eradication of bovine tuberculosis, treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis, diphtheria and rabies; sewers and sewage disposal, street cleaning, refuse and garbage disposal. Health services represent 3.2 per cent of total expenditures.

Charity and corrections amount to 4.2 per cent of total expenditures. This includes the cost of county homes, children's homes, outdoor relief, blind relief, mothers' pensions, jails and work-houses, and support of inmates in state institutions. Miscellaneous which is shown in the chart in combination with protection includes such items as parks, recreation, memorial buildings, county ditches and several small items unclassified because of insufficient accounting information.

Education, accounting for 34.6 per cent of total expenditures, includes the operation and outlay costs of all local public schools, the county board of education, and libraries. County fairs and farmers' institutes, representing 3 per cent of the total expenditures were included under education. Agricultural extension, work, representing 1 per cent of total expenditures, also might be included under education.

Interest payments on outstanding bonds and on short term notes plus payments for outstanding debt obligations represented 20.6 per cent of revenue expenditures. Highway costs include the construction and maintenance of all thoroughfares of travel, excluding costs borne by the state. Part of the funds going into road construction was borrowed money and therefore does not represent a burden to the taxpayers in the year considered.

LEGION AUXILIARY AIDS RELIEF PLAN

Women Can Surplus Fruit For Distribution To Various Needy Persons.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—A new method of aiding needy families has been started by several units of the American Legion Auxiliary in this State.

It consists of using surplus fruit to make jams and jellies, which are given to those needing relief in the way of food. Coupled with the flour, which the Auxiliary already is helping to distribute for the Government, and which is made into bread, the jams and jellies help to provide many wholesome and strengthening meals.

When the plan was suggested in a meeting of one of the New York Units, a call was sent out for volunteers to meet at a member's garden, pick the fruit and put it up. The enthusiasm of the response not only on the part of the members but also on the part of those who received the jam and jelly, led to several similar "jelly bees."

The idea spread. Other Units in the State began to utilize in this manner the surplus fruits from their own orchards and those of their friends.

Soon offers of all kinds began pouring in. Donations of fruit came from those who had plenty. Sugar and glasses came from those who had no fruit. And women who had neither fruit nor equipment gave freely of their time.

Each of several units pledged 100 glasses of jelly for distribution, but Mrs. I. N. Ashby, State Secretary of the Auxiliary, says that the generous contributions are bringing in many hundreds of glasses above this quota.

Certain days are designated on which some of the members of the Auxiliary make their jellies in the kitchens of the Legion Headquarters. But every member of the Unit has been asked to make jelly in her own home.

Woodchuck Good Eating
In pioneer days, the groundhog or woodchuck was considered the makings of a toothsome dish, says the American Game association. Nowadays they are not generally eaten, but since woodchucks are strictly vegetable feeders, there is no reason why farmers who kill woodchucks should not follow the example of pioneers and eat the 'chucks.

MUHLBERG-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

The P. T. A. of Muhlenberg-twp, gave a teachers' reception last Friday evening in the school auditorium. A delicious dinner was served, after which the following program was rendered:

Toastmaster, Mr. Barton; Remarks, Mr. Barton; Welcome, Mrs. Gilbert Crawford, President of P. T. A.; Vocal duet, Blanche and Christena Heeter; Talk, Russell Stebleton, High school principal; Talk, Miss Ruth Schellhase, High school teacher; Reading, Mary Jane Smith; Talk, Miss Helen Betts, music teacher; Talk, John McPherson, 7th and 8th grade teacher; Reading, Gendal Dick; Talk, Miss Florence Hill, 5th and 6th grade teacher; Talk, Miss Dorothy Hill, 3rd and 4th grade teacher; Piano solo, Miss Betts; Talk, Miss Louise Carpenter, 1st and 2nd grade teacher; Talk, Frank Beatty; Vocal solo, Mr. Barton; Talk, Rev. Roese; Piano solo, Miss Schellhase; Talk, Rev. Scott.

After the program everybody had a very enjoyable time getting acquainted with the new teachers.

The next regular meeting of the P. T. A. will be held in the school auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 6, 1932. A program is being prepared for chapel on Monday, Oct. 3rd and a part of the same program will be rendered for the P. T. A. Everybody is invited to attend the meeting.

It was decided at our first P. T. A. meeting to start hot lunch on the first Monday in October.

The music course which was introduced into our school for the first time is progressing very nicely. The boys and girls are being taught to sing in harmony as well as playing the piano. We have three classes in class piano started.

Our first and second baseball games came out disastrously for us as far as the score was concerned. Our first game was with Darby on their grounds and the score was 7 to 0 for the boys and 25 to 3 for the girls. Our second game was played at Jackson. The boys showed some improvement over the game played at Darby and held the Jackson boys to a 8-16 score in favor of Jackson. The girls also showed some improvement over the game with Darby and held the Jackson girls to a score of 15 to 30.

Wait until we get the two above named schools on our own grounds and the story may be different. Our next game is with Jackson at Muhlenberg on Friday, Sept. 30. Come out and see your home team play.

Our attendance for the first three weeks has been better this year than it has for several years during the same period of time. We have made arrangements to give a perfect attendance certificate to all pupils who have a perfect attendance for six weeks. This has encouraged all the pupils to have a perfect attendance if possible. The intrinsic value of the card is small but the honor of earning one is the aim of every pupil.

Three new pupils have enrolled in the first grade which makes a total enrollment for that grade of 21. The 1st and 2nd grades have been enjoying the story "Everyday Doings in Healthville," which Miss Carpenter has been reading to them.

The seventh and eighth grades have been giving interesting as well as educational Current Events every morning for the past week. The seventh and eighth grade boys defeated the seventh and eighth grade boys of Monroe-twp in baseball last Friday; the score was 9 to 3.

The 3rd and 4th grades lost two pupils this week. Clyde and Floyd Darst moved to Jackson-twp.

The sophomore class gave a weiner roast last Friday evening on the banks of Darby creek. All the high school pupils were invited and had the privilege of giving a guest. All the H. S. teachers were there and all but a few of the pupils. The affair started at 8 o'clock and ended at 10 o'clock. Everyone present had a very enjoyable time.

The fifth and sixth grades have begun work in their arithmetic work books.

All the teachers of Muhlenberg-twp were present at the county teachers' meeting held at Ashville but Mr. McPherson.

William McKinney who graduated from Muhlenberg last year has started to school at Ohio University. He and Lawrence Fullen who graduated from Muhlenberg in 1931 are rooming together. There will probably be some others of the class of '32 attend some higher institution of learning later in the year.

The following teachers of Muhlenberg-twp, attended summer school last summer: John McPherson and Florence Hill, Ohio University; Dorothy Hill, Capital University; and Miss Helen Betts, Ohio State University.

Mrs. Dorothy Marchington and daughter, Florence May of Adelphi are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Kreisel and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Minshall of Adelphi spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Minshall and family.

The Colerain United Brethren Sunday School will hold an all-day meeting with a picnic dinner at the noon hour on Sunday October 2. The service to begin at 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Emma Sharpe and son, Henry enjoyed a picnic supper at their cottage at the Kellenberger Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Delong, Mrs. Amanda Beavers and grandsons, James and Major of Chillicothe, were visitors at the homes of Mrs. Laura Delong and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Anderson and Mrs.

Peace, Too, Hath Its Martyrs Heroes in Fight for Progress

Death of Colonel John Slattery Through Overwork on Giant Subway Project Recalls Similar Tragedy of Holland Tunnel Builder.

CLIFFORD W. HOLLAND

The death through overwork, on the completion of his gigantic task of supervising New York's Independent Subway system, of Colonel John R. Slattery makes one wonder if after all peace does not produce more heroes than war. True, the men who in peace-time work in the great Army of Progress, have none of the spectacular battlefield atmosphere that weaves a glamorous aura about the specialist in mass murder, but their work is more enduring and deserving of a more noble chapter in history. From the time of his graduation from West Point Military Academy to 1925, Col. Slattery had built up an enviable career as an army engineer, having worked practically all over the United States. In 1925 he accepted a post as deputy chief engineer on the New York Board of Transportation and supervised the building of the new subway. On its completion he was made general manager of the system. The tragedy is that he had worked so hard on the gigantic task that he did not live to enjoy his reward. Remarkably similar to the case of Colonel Slattery was that of Clifford W. Holland, builder of the vehicular tunnel that links New York and New Jersey. On the night when workmen were to drill through the last layer of rock, the sole remaining obstacle to a clear road under the Hudson River between the two states, Holland died of a heart attack in Battle Creek Sanitarium, Michigan. He, too, had not given a thought to the wear and tear on his constitution while engaged on the great engineering project. But these two heroes in the great army of progress did not die in vain, as have so many on the world's battlefields. Their achievements stand as an enduring testimonial that "peace, too, hath her victories."

Emma Sharpe on Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Sims and sons, Jimmie and Jack, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Maynard and family, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Eley and daughter, Betty Lou of Scioto Furnace, Miss Texie Stett, Mrs. Hazel Young and daughter, Doris, of Chatteroy W. Va., Mrs. Mary Bisher and Mr. M. E. Proctor of Bexley W. Va., all enjoyed a fine picnic at Camden Park in Huntington W. Va., Miss Fay Maynard are students at Marshall College in Huntington they are taking teachers courses.

Time

THE idea of time which turns conveniently backward in its flight to aid the intellectual adventures of physicists, or rather of time with neither a forward nor a backward to provide distinction for a turning, as expressed by a scientist, will seem to common-sense people little more than wordy nonsense.

It is worth remembering, however, that many fundamentals of science are but wordy nonsense when viewed from the strictly limited outlook of common sense, an outlook which cannot transcend experience of the human senses. It is no verbal accident, but a deep and important philosophical truth that the more usual kinds of reasoning are called "senses" and the means by which this reasoning is attained are called "senses."

The senses permit no fusion or confusion, for example, between the senses of up and down. Yet it needs but little knowledge of the cos-mos to convince that no such thing exists.

Even to strictly common-sense physicists it becomes increasingly evident that the human body has many senses beyond the traditional five; some of them especially important precisely because their operations are so largely unconscious. One of these is the still mysterious time sense. Where it resides no one knows. What bodily mechanism keeps clock on it is equally a mystery. Yet there can be no doubt that, in some way the human machine keeps track of something that we call the passage of time.

What the scientists are trying to find out is whether that machine perceives the passage of time wrongly as it perceives the cosmic fact of gravity wrong. Perhaps there is neither past nor future, they say.

Treaty With Haiti

HAITI and all Latin America now have convincing proof of the sincerity of the United States in its professed purpose to avoid any sort of policy in the Caribbean or elsewhere that might be charged, however unjustly, with savoring of imperialism. This proof is contained in the treaty between the United States and Haiti which has just been submitted to the Haitian congress for ratification.

This pact sets a definite time for the withdrawal of American marine officers from the Haitian national guard, pledges the speediest possible removal of the marine force from Port au Prince, allows for an American military mission to train the native national guard and give the president of the United States the power to nominate a fiscal representative to supervise customs collections and allocation of receipts until complete amortization of Haiti's foreign loans, secured on national revenue.

There is further evidence that Washington has ever worked for the advantage of the island and in every way has endeavored not to encroach upon and to scrupulously respect its sovereignty. The unusual intervention of 1915 was justified and has worked out to the advantage of the little island republic, though at the time Washington's action may have seemed arrogant imperialism.

Amicable and mutually beneficial relations between the United States and Haiti are in prospect should the program outlined by the Forbes commission be carried out.

Chicago Tax Muddle

MUNICIPAL and taxpayer eyes the nation over are focused on the United States supreme court as it prepares to review the decisions of the Illinois courts in the notorious Chicago and Cook County tax cases. It is within the province of the nation's highest tribunal to incite a more or less peaceful tax revolution national in scope.

Twenty-five hundred indignant taxpayers started the litigation by appealing from the 1929 tax levies on the grounds that they were unfair and confiscatory because they imposed eighty-three and one-half per cent of the tax burden upon real estate and only sixteen and one-half per cent on personal property, instead of levying on a 75-25 basis.

Though the long dispute has imposed administrative hardships upon the city of Chicago and the county of Cook and worse hardships upon school teachers and other public employees who have gone unpaid for long periods of time, some permanent good is certain to come from the fight. At this stage of the proceedings some relief for tax-burdened real estate seems certain. Moreover, anything that makes the public more tax-conscious makes public administrators more tax careful.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931 BY COVICI-FRIEDE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE INC.

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at three o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding, alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. A trap picked up in Lola's room evidently caused the bruise on Christine's neck—after death. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had discovered a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by the Paris Prefect of Police as that of Basil Boucher, a young bank clerk, who met a dancer named Lola in Paris, robbed a bank to buy her a ruby, and then disappeared. Basil's parents sold medical laboratory specimens. Professor Luckner, a scientist, finds a scorpion's antenna—the instrument of death—among the particles of dust gathered from Lola's room. Colt is puzzled as there were no punctures visible on the bodies. Then Luckner calls Colt's attention to a "peck of blood on the sleeve of Lola's robe which leads the Commissioner to surmise that Dr. Baldwin, when summoned to treat Lola, inserted his hypodermic needle into the puncture made in her arm by the scorpion. This belief is strengthened by the knowledge that Baldwin bought scorpions.

CHAPTER THIRTY

"LUCKNER is a queer old bird," the chief remarked. "Once he was offered a chair as professor of pathological anatomy at the University of Berlin. He turned it down because he did not like Berlin, and took a lesser job in Heidelberg. I think he is at heart a great detective but he will devote himself to criminal research only as a special favor to me. He has the gift of investigation and with all of the resources of science at his disposal, he could become one of our most valuable agents. Of course, he's old, but he could train his successor so that the work could go on when he grew too old or tired. But he will not hear of it. He regards detective work as degrading to a scientist. He says he is not interested in catching the criminal but he wants to understand the crime. But this time he has made, in an amazingly short period, a truly extraordinary discovery. Whoever is guilty must certainly consider himself beyond detection."

Again he relapsed into silence, as the car sped on through Central Park in a weaving diagonal route—a speedy one-way passage since Colt had put into effect the new traffic regulations. And then a vicious worming through the tangled traffic across Fifth Avenue and into the purloins of the far East Side where, on the water-front, majestic modern apartment houses flourish today in uneasy democracy with slaughter-houses and tenements.

Within five minutes we stopped again before the door of that apartment house where mysterious death had overtaken two beautiful women—and where Doctor Baldwin had his office suite.

Across the street, in front of another apartment house, a man was standing in a chasseur's uniform of blue and gold, and with a visored cap. Instantly I recognized him as one of our best men from Headquarters, on duty trailing Dr. Baldwin. I knew, too, that his partner was not far away—probably watching the rear entrance. This was certain evidence that Doctor Baldwin had not yet returned to his home but was still in his office.

A patrolman in the lobby and another in the elevator saluted as the Commissioner and I entered and rode up to the second floor. We made our way down a narrow corridor until we came to a door on which was lettered the legend: "Hugh Baldwin, M.D. Office Hours 10 A.M. to 11:30 A.M., 2:30 P.M. to 4:00 P.M. Consultation by Appointment Only."

Colt turned the knob and opened the door. We found ourselves in an outer office where a business-like woman of about thirty years, a sexless creature with mouse-colored hair, sat at a desk, making out bills and addressing envelopes. She looked up inquiringly, then recognizing Colt's familiar features, she stood up in flushed confusion.

"Is Doctor Baldwin in the office?" asked Colt.

"Why, yes, Mr. Colt, I'll tell him right away that you are here."

She turned and was about to open a massive door behind her when suddenly the front door opened violently. A short and stout woman, spherical and plump, her face crimson and her blue eyes snapping angrily, rushed in and, ignoring Colt and myself, confronted the other woman.

"Is Hugh in there, Miss Simon?" demanded the newcomer, panting and excited.

"Why, yes, Mrs. Baldwin, he is, but the gentlemen—"

"These gentlemen can wait."

It was evident that Mrs. Baldwin was in a mental turmoil. A graceless and rather pitiful little figure, she strode quickly to the closed door and seized the knob. But the door did not yield. It was locked. With a glare in her eyes, Mrs. Baldwin turned toward the secretary.

"Is there a patient in there?"

"No."

"Open this door," the wife commanded furiously.

"I have no key," replied Miss Simon. "I didn't know it was locked."

In a frenzy of anger, Mrs. Baldwin seized the knob of the door with both hands as if only more of her strength were needed to pull it free. She rattled it in a violent ecstasy of energy.

"Hugh," she screamed. "Open this door and let me in!"

There was no answer.

"Hugh!" she cried again. Still no answer. With a bewildered air, Mrs. Baldwin looked around at us for the first time.

"He doesn't answer," she said as if stating a miracle.

Colt's face was sombre and grave. His eyes gleamed with a newly awakened suspicion.

"Miss Simon," he asked quietly, "is there any way for Doctor Baldwin to have left his private office?"

"No—only through this end-entrance."

This answer decided Thatcher Colt.

"I believe it would be better if you would permit me to open this door," he proposed, his glance wavering between Mrs. Baldwin and the secretary. Neither replied.

Colt produced a skeleton key, one of several always in his pocket. For a few seconds, he rattled the key uncertainly in the lock, then he gave a violent push and we heard the snapping of the winch.

Thatcher Colt opened the door. On the floor lay Doctor Hugh Baldwin. He was dead—shockingly so. One long searching glance Mrs. Baldwin cast upon the dead body of her husband. Then she collapsed. She dropped to the floor in a dumpy heap, and lay very still, as if she herself were dead.

Excited as we were at our tragic discovery, Colt and I had to turn our backs momentarily upon the corpse of the physician while we struggled with the limp and heavy body of his widow.

We carried her to a couch in the reception office. Fortunately, Miss Simon, the reception clerk, was a self-composed young woman who could assist us without hysterics. She volunteered to resuscitate the unconscious Mrs. Baldwin while the Commissioner and I returned to the private office and closed ourselves in with the stark figure on the floor.

The appearance of that figure was ghastly to the point of the fantastic. Dr. Baldwin lay there as if in dreadful caricature of the unhappy woman whom he had been unable to save, only a few hours before.

Like Lola Carewe and Christine Quires sprawled Doctor Baldwin. As their hands had been flung in twisted anguish above their heads, so Doctor Baldwin's mighty arms were turned up in a stiff attitude of mortal anguish. Lola had lain twisted at our feet, her body screwed almost into the semblance of a question mark. So twisted also was the long, strong body of this athletic physician. The unnatural curve of arms and legs, the distortion of the neck, the very pointing of his toes suggested one bizarre interrogation point.

But there was more to add to our discovery a confounding tinge of horror. On the strained face of Doctor Baldwin there glinted the familiar moist glow in death that also had stained the lovely face of Lola Carewe. There was the same bloating of the lips and the crimson spot of blood in the corners of the mouth. Here was a masculine replica of the deaths of Lola and Christine—the scorpion of Durango had struck again.

Kneeling beside the body, Colt listened at the doctor's heart.

"He is dead," the Commissioner told me with a melancholy glance. His eyes, fixed gloomily on mine, asked questions I had no need to voice. Why and how had this man died? Had the instrument of death turned upon its master? Or had Baldwin been innocent of our suspicions? A third victim of unknown killers? Were we at the finish of our trail? Or on the threshold of a greater mystery?

"There is no hope," repeated Thatcher Colt, "but we should take no chances. There are two other doctors with offices on the first floor. Get one of them up here."

Five minutes later, I was back in the apartment with a dark, boyish-faced Jewish physician, Doctor Tannenbaum. He immediately pronounced his colleague dead, and expressed himself as amazed at the symptoms. At this, Colt glanced toward me. Here was Doctor Tannenbaum confronted with the same symptoms which Doctor Baldwin had seen the night before in Lola Carewe and Christine Quires. I remembered that at Baldwin had promptly stated that Lola was a victim of heart trouble. But this Doctor Tannenbaum was instantly suspicious. In fact, he insisted that the police be notified and he flushed with astonishment upon learning that the tall dark-haired man before him, tanned and grave, was the Chief of Police.

"If I can help, Commissioner—"

"I shall be glad to call on you," Colt assured him, taking his hand and while shaking it, leading him suavely to the door.

Moderation in All Things Best for Hardened Arteries

Various Causes Make Blood Vessels Thick and Inelastic, and When This Condition Exists It's Important to Take It Easy, Avoid Worry and Watch Your Diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHERE is a chronic condition of the blood vessels which causes a good deal of trouble. Their walls become thicker than normal and consequently less elastic. Although most common in advanced life, especially after the sixtieth year, such changes are by no means unknown in those of middle age.

The condition is referred to as "hardening of the arteries," but doctors, seeking big names for everything, call it "arteriosclerosis."

It is sometimes an inherited defect. It occurs, too, where great mental strain is undergone.

The chief exciting cause is chronic poisoning of the body tissues. It is found in gout, diabetes and inflammation of the kidneys. Abnormal substances in the blood may injure the blood vessels directly, or by contracting the smaller vessels, raise the blood pressure. Acute infections also may produce changes in the body that later develop into arteriosclerosis.

In advanced cases the affected vessels become hardened tubes, and as a result there is an interference with the free circulation of the blood.

The symptoms of arteriosclerosis all depend upon which particular blood vessels are involved. In some cases general failure of health, pallor of the skin and loss of energy are the first symptoms noted.

Avoid Over-exertion

The outcome in any case is dependent upon the location of the blood vessels diseased and the willingness of the patient to follow the advice of his physician. Where the blood pressure is very high and the kidneys show signs of failure, the utmost care must be exercised.

The treatment must be suited to the general health the habits and the financial circumstances of the patient. The most important thing is moderation in every particular. A life free from excitement and worry will do much toward ensuring a comfortable and useful existence.

There should be no over-exertion. No alcoholic beverages and very little tobacco, if any. The diet should be unstimulating, largely vegetable and cereal. Tea and coffee in moderation are not prohibited, but most patients will do better if they use milk or fermented milk as a substitute.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, Sept. 28, 1932

This is read as an important day in planetary direction and according to astrology, much action is predicted, in business and art.

Success may be had in the making of agreements and signing of contracts. Articles should be successfully presented for publication. Dealing with strangers, writing letters, answering advertisements, dealing with distributors, commission people, mail order houses, seeking information and attending theatres is advisable on this day.

The seers declare this day important for accomplishing things, it is good for artistic, domestic and personal activities.

These vibrations favor reading and studying, also good for book stores and Y. M. C. A. and other athletic associations and clubs. Bowling, billiards and other sport games should be well patronized.

This is a lucky day to gain through activity in martial affairs, also auspicious for dealing with doctors, surgeons and military men.

At this time it is unfortunate for lawsuits, and one should avoid quarreling during this configuration of the planets. Rashness, extravagance and recklessness is likely to be shown at this time.

Under this rule of the stars people born the last ten days of February, December, and April should be especially careful in business and social affairs during the coming two weeks.

Children born on this day, possess a good personality and attract people to them. They are literary, musical and artistically inclined.

Francis E. Willard was born on this date. Others who have also celebrated it as a birthday include Georges Clemenceau, French statesman; William Jones, 1745 Orientalist.

That you should choose your merchandise from the stocks of the home merchants instead of from a catalogue.

It is the policy of the home city merchant to keep pace with the demands of the people of the home city. Visible evidence to that effect can be seen everywhere.

In purchasing merchandise, it is always best to buy the best available. The best is always advertised.

Advertisements will give you the information you should have before buying.

Dollars spent in the home city work for the home city. They not only earn a good return for their owners by their service, but they continue to serve the community.

The only way you can be completely satisfied with the goods you buy is to buy them from the merchants of the home city.

Time
THE idea of time which turns conveniently backward in its flight to aid the intellectual adventures of physicists, or rather of time with neither a forward nor a backward to provide distinction for a turning, as expressed by a scientist, will seem to common-sense people little more than wordy nonsense.

It is worth remembering, however, that many fundamentals of science are but wordy nonsense, when viewed from the strictly limited outlook of common sense, an outlook which cannot transcend experience of the human senses. It is no verbal accident, but a deep and important philosophical truth that the more usual kinds of reasoning are called "sense" and the means by which this reasoning is attained are called "senses."

The senses permit no fusion or confusion, for example, between the ideas of up and down. Yet it needs but little knowledge of the cosmos to convince that no such thing exists.

Even to strictly common-sense physiologists it becomes increasingly evident that the human body has many senses beyond the traditional five; some of them especially important precisely because their operations are so largely unconscious. One of these is the still mysterious time sense. Where it resides no one knows. What bodily mechanism keeps clock on it is equally a mystery. Yet there can be no doubt that in some way the human machine keeps track of something that we call the passage of time.

What the scientists are trying to find out is whether that machine perceives the passage of time wrongly as it perceives the cosmic fact of gravity wrongly. Perhaps there is neither past nor future, they say.

Treaty With Haiti

HAITI and all Latin America now have convincing proof of the sincerity of the United States in its professions to avoid any sort of policy in the Caribbean or elsewhere that might be charged, however unjustly, with savoring of imperialism. This proof is contained in the treaty between the United States and Haiti which has just been submitted to the Haitian congress for ratification.

This pact sets a definite time for the withdrawal of American marine officers from the Haitian national guard, pledges the speediest possible removal of the marine force from Port au Prince, allows for an American military mission to train the native national guard and give the president of the United States the power to nominate a fiscal representative to supervise customs collections and allocation of receipts until complete amortization of Haiti's foreign loans, secured on national revenue.

Here is further evidence that Washington has ever worked for the advantage of the island and in every way has endeavored not to encroach upon and to scrupulously respect its sovereignty. The unilateral intervention of 1915 was justified and has worked out to the advantage of the little island republic, though at the time Washington's action may have seemed arrogant imperialism.

Amicable and mutually beneficial relations between the United States and Haiti are in prospect should the program outlined by the Forbes commission be carried out.

Chicago Tax Muddle

MUNICIPAL and taxpayer eyes the nation over are focused on the United States supreme court as it prepares to review the decisions of the Illinois courts in the notorious Chicago and Cook County tax cases. It is within the province of the nation's highest tribunal to incite a more or less peaceful tax revolution national in scope.

Twenty-five hundred indignant taxpayers started the litigation by appealing from the 1929 tax levies on the grounds that they were unfair and confiscatory because they impose eighty-three and one-half per cent of the tax burden upon real estate and only sixteen and one-half per cent on personal property, instead of levying on a 75-25 basis.

Though the long dispute has imposed administrative hardships upon the city of Chicago and the county of Cook and worse hardships upon school teachers and other public employees who have gone unpaid for long periods of time, some permanent good is certain to come from the fight. At this stage of the proceedings some relief for tax-burdened real estate seems certain. Moreover, anything that makes the public more tax-conscious makes public administrators more tax careful.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"
THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY
BY ANTHONY ABBOT
COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COVICK-FRIEDE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady," is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at three o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding, alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. A strap picked up in Lola's room evidently caused the bruise on Christine's neck—after death. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had discovered a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by the Paris Prefect of Police as that of Basil Boucher, a young bank clerk, who met a dancer named Lola in Paris, robbed a bank to buy her a ruby, and then disappeared. Basil's parents sold medical laboratory specimens. Professor Luckner, a scientist, finds a scorpion's antenna—the instrument of death—among the particles of dust garnered from Lola's room. Colt is puzzled as there were no punctures visible on the bodies. Then Luckner calls Colt's attention to a speck of blood on the sleeve of Lola's robe which leads the Commissioner to surmise that Dr. Baldwin, when summoned to treat Lola, inserted his hypodermic needle into the puncture made in her arm by the scorpion. This belief is strengthened by the knowledge that Baldwin bought scorpions.

CHAPTER THIRTY

LUCKNER is a queer old bird," the chief remarked. "Once he was offered a chair as professor of pathologic anatomy at the University of Berlin. He turned it down because he did not like Berlin, and took a lesser job in Heidelberg. I think he is at heart a great detective but he will devote himself to criminal research only as a special favor to me. He has the gift for investigation and with all of the resources of science at his disposal, he could become one of our most valuable agents. Of course, he's old, but he could train his successor so that the work could go on when he grew too old or tired. But he will not hear of it. He regards detective work as degrading to a scientist. He says he is not interested in catching the criminal but he wants to understand the crime. But he has made, in an amazingly short period, a truly extraordinary discovery. Whoever is guilty must certainly consider himself beyond detection."

Again he relapsed into silence, as the car sped on through Central Park in a weaving diagonal route—a speedy way passage since Colt had put into effect the new traffic regulations. And then a vicious worming through the tangled traffic around Fifth Avenue and into the purlieus of the far East Side where, on the water-front, majestic modern apartment houses flourish today in uneasy democracy with slaughter-houses and tenements.

Within five minutes we stopped again before the door of that apartment house where mysterious death had overtaken two beautiful women—and where Doctor Baldwin had his office suite.

Across the street, in front of another apartment house, a man was standing in a chasseur's uniform of blue and gold, and with a visored cap. Instantly I recognized him as one of our best men from Headquarters, on duty trailing Dr. Baldwin. I knew, too, that his partner was not far away—probably watching the rear entrance. This was certain evidence that Doctor Baldwin had not yet returned to his home but was still in his office.

A patrolman in the lobby and another in the elevator saluted as the Commissioner and I entered and rode up to the second floor. We made our way down a narrow corridor until we came to a door on which was lettered the legend: "Hugh Baldwin, M.D. Office Hours 10 A.M. to 11:30 A.M., 2:30 P.M. to 4:00 P.M. Consultation by Appointment Only."

Colt turned the knob and opened the door. We found ourselves in an outer office where a business-like woman of about thirty years, a sexless creature with mouse-colored hair, sat at a desk, making out bills and addressing envelopes. She looked up inquiringly, then recognizing Colt's familiar features, she stood up in flushed confusion.

"Is Doctor Baldwin in the office?" asked Colt.

"Why, yes, Mr. Colt, I'll tell him right away that you are here."

She turned and was about to open a massive door behind her when suddenly the front door opened violently. A short and stout woman, spherical and plump, her face crimson and her blue eyes snapping angrily, rushed in and, ignoring Colt and myself, confronted the other woman.

"Is Hugh in there, Miss Simon?" demanded the newcomer, panting and excited.

"Why, yes, Mrs. Baldwin, he is, but these gentlemen—"

"These gentlemen can wait."

It was evident that Mrs. Baldwin was in a mental turmoil. A graceless and rather pitiful little figure, she strode quickly to the closed door and seized the knob. But the door did not yield. It was locked. With a glare in her eyes, Mrs. Baldwin turned toward the secretary.

"Is there a patient in there?"

"No!"

"Open this door," the wife commanded furiously.

"I have no key," replied Miss Simon. "I didn't know it was locked."

In a frenzy of anger, Mrs. Baldwin seized the knob of the door with both hands as if only more of her strength were needed to pull it free. She rattled it in a violent ecstasy of energy.

"Hugh," she screamed. "Open this door and let me in!" There was no answer.

"Hugh!" she cried again. Still no answer. With a bewildered air, Mrs. Baldwin looked around at us for the first time.

"He doesn't answer," she said as if stating a miracle.

Colt's face was sombre and grave. His eyes gleamed with a newly awakened suspicion.

"Miss Simon," he asked quietly, "is there any way for Doctor Baldwin to have left his private office?"

"No—only through this entrance."

This answer decided Thatcher Colt.

"I believe it would be better if you would permit me to open this door," he proposed, his glance wavering between Mrs. Baldwin and the secretary. Neither replied.

Colt produced a skeleton key, one of several always in his pocket. For a few seconds, he rattled the key uncertainly in the lock, then he gave a violent push and we heard the snapping of the winch Thatcher Colt opened the door On the floor lay Doctor Hugh Baldwin. He was dead—shockingly so! One long searching glance Mrs. Baldwin cast upon the dead body of her husband. Then she collapsed. She dropped to the floor in a dimpling heap, and lay very still, as if she herself were dead.

Excited as we were at our tragic discovery, Colt and I had to turn our backs momentarily upon the corpse of the physician while we struggled with the limp and heavy body of his widow.

We carried her to a couch in the reception office. Fortunately, Miss Simon, the reception clerk, was a self-composed young woman who could assist us without hysterics. She volunteered to resuscitate the unconscious Mrs. Baldwin while the Commissioner and I returned to the private office and closed ourselves in with the stark figure on the floor.

The appearance of that figure was ghastly to the point of the fantastic. Dr. Baldwin lay there as if in dreadful caricature of the unhappy women whom he had been unable to save, only a few hours before.

Like Lola Carewe and Christine Quires sprawled Doctor Baldwin. As their hands had been flung in twisted anguish above their heads, so Doctor Baldwin's mighty arms were turned up in a stiff attitude of mortal anguish. Lola had lain twisted at our feet, her body screwed almost into the semblance of a question mark. So twisted also was the long, strong body of this athletic physician. The unnatural curve of arms and legs, the distortion of the neck, the very pointing of his toes suggested one bizarre interrogation point.

But there was more to add to our discovery a confounding tinge of horror. On the strained face of Doctor Baldwin there glistered the familiar moist glow in death that also had stained the lovely face of Lola Carewe. There was the same bloating of the lips and the crimson spot of blood in the corners of the mouth. Here was a masculine replica of the deaths of Lola and Christine—the scorpion of Durango had struck again.

Kneeling beside the body, Colt listened at the doctor's heart.

"He is dead," the Commissioner told me with a melancholy glance. His eyes, fixed gloomily on mine, asked questions I had no need to voice. Why and how had this man died? Had the instrument of death turned upon its master? Or had Baldwin been innocent of our suspicions? A third victim of unknown killers? Were we at the finish of our trail? Or on the threshold of a greater mystery?

"There is no hope," repeated Thatcher Colt. "But we should take no chances. There are two other doctors with offices on the first floor. Get one of them up here."

Five minutes later, I was back in the apartment with a dark, boyish-faced Jewish physician, Doctor Tannenbaum. He immediately pronounced his colleague dead, and expressed himself as amazed at the symptoms. At this, Colt glanced toward me. Here was Doctor Tannenbaum confronted with the same symptoms which Doctor Baldwin had seen the night before in Lola Carewe and Christine Quires. I remembered that t that Baldwin had promptly stated that Lola was a victim of heart trouble. But this Doctor Tannenbaum was instantly suspicious. In fact, he insisted that the police be notified and he flushed with astonishment upon learning that the tall dark-haired man before him, tanned and grave, was the Chief of Police.

"I shall be glad to call on you," Colt assured him, taking his hand and while shaking it, leading him suavely to the door.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Zane Grey's action romance of the west, "Heritage of the Desert," done into movie form with a cast headed by Randolph Scott, Sally Blane and J. Farrell MacDonald, opens Friday and Saturday at the Cliftona Theatre.

The movie, directed by Henry Hathaway, follows the plot of the novel closely. Scott, as a young surveyor, is called by MacDonald to his ranch to check its boundaries accurately. David Landau, head of a band of cattle rustlers, attempts to prevent his reaching the ranch house alive, but fails.

Arriving there ultimately, Scott meets and falls in love with Miss Blane, daughter of MacDonald's dead partner. She is to marry MacDonald's son, but she is soon in love with Scott. The son, a weak character, borrows money from Landau, to finance his sprees in town, and ultimately suffers death at his hands.

His father, broken-hearted but infuriated, and Scott lead the ranchmen on the mission of vengeance, and when they have completed it, the path to happiness for Scott and Miss Blane is clear.

Advanced cases may be accompanied by disturbance of vision. Sometimes the vessels of the abdomen may be affected, causing severe pain not dependent upon the food taken. These abdominal symptoms may be misleading and often are not recognized as due to the arterial condition. Usually they are regarded as indicating some form of indigestion, but the fact that treatment for indigestion is useless and that remedies to reduce high blood pressure are effective brings recognition of the real cause.

The outcome in any case is dependent upon the location of the blood vessels diseased and the willingness of the patient to follow the advice of his physician. MONROE-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

The Monroe-twp school opened its doors on Monday, Sept. 12, to 272 students. The year has every appearance of being a successful one as two new trucks have been added to insure regular attendance. The old trucks have been repaired to a safer and more satisfactory state than the previous year.

The junior and senior high school plan is being tried. The high school teachers, R. L. Barton, superintendent; Harold K. Costlow, principal, and two new teachers, Miss Katharine May of Circleville, and Miss Helen McVey of Leesburg, will be in complete charge of both the junior and senior high school. The plan is on a more satisfactory and economical basis than the plans of years heretofore.

Out of the eight graduates of last year, three have entered Capital University at Columbus.

The teachers of Monroe-twp were well represented at the first Pickaway-co- teachers' meeting held at Ashville, Sept. 17. Those present were, Mr. Barton, superintendent; Mr. Costlow, principal; Miss May and Miss McVey, high school teachers, and Miss Snyder, Miss Ater and Miss Boatman, grade teachers.

The junior high school journeyed to Darbyville Friday to meet Muhlenberg's seventh and eighth grade team. They were defeated by a score of 9 to 4.

ASK BAN ON HITCH HIKERS

DENVER—Denver social workers are preparing a demand that the state legislature pass laws to check hitch-hiking by making it a misdemeanor or a felony. Disease, which spreads through the ranks of the roving army of 200,000 hitch-hikers moving about the country, has made it a menace to health, they declare.

DIVER RESCUED

Rescuers reached him after much difficulty and he was brought ashore unconscious. Firemen revived him with a pullmotor.

O. E. S. HAS MEMORIAL SERVICE TUESDAY

An interesting feature of the regular meeting of the local Eastern Star chapter held Tuesday evening was an impressive memorial service in commemoration of J. Ernest Teare, a past patron, past grand patron and past most worthy grandpatron of the Order of the Eastern Star and of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Weaver, who were charter members of the local chapter. Mrs. Weaver was one of the past worthy matrons of the chapter and at one time held an office in the grand chapter of Ohio.

During the roll call of the departed members by Mrs. E. L. Price, secretary, Mrs. Opal Gephart, social conductress, made the floral tribute. While the chapter was being draped in black, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, associate matron, read Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" with sweet solemnity.

Prof. E. I. Gephart, worthy patron of the chapter, gave the address of the evening. This address was presented in a forceful and impressive manner and held the interest of everyone present. All realized that no mistake had been made in the choice of a speaker for this occasion.

At the close of the service, Mrs. Frank Kline Jr., sang "Open The Gates of the Temple." Mrs. Kline was in splendid voice and the excitement and feeling with which she sang this wonderful selection imparted to each one present a renewed realization of a glorified resurrection. Appropriate music during these ceremonies was rendered by the pianist, Miss Carrie Johnson.

The October meeting of the chapter will be under the supervision of the October group of which Mrs. Hervey Sweyer is the leader.

Suicide of British Hangman Recalls Notable Executions

John Ellis, "The Man Who Walked Alone," Had Officiated At More Than Two Hundred Gallows Ceremonies.

SIR ROGER CASEMENT Mrs. EDITH THOMPSON

Driven to suicide by brooding on memories of the past that he could not wipe out after eight years of retirement, John Ellis, who for twenty-two years was England's public executioner, left behind him a sinister record that probably will never be equalled in Western civilization. Ellis, during his tenure of office, officiated at the executions of 203 condemned murderers. Among them was Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, who was convicted of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, a crime bearing a remarkable similarity to the recent Dr. Boiss case in Plymouth, Mass. It was Ellis, too, who fashioned the noose that ended the life of Sir Roger Casement, Irish baronet, who was British Consul in Berlin when the World War broke out. Casement was convicted of treason by conspiring to cause an armed revolt in Ireland and seeking German aid to that end. But it was the execution of Mrs. Edith Thompson, who with Frederick Bywaters was convicted of the murder of her husband, that broke the iron nerve of Ellis. Screaming and struggling, the woman had to be dragged to the scaffold and held on the trap while the hangman did his work. Ellis retired after that and attempted to live down his reputation. He attempted suicide with a revolver in 1924, but recovered and promised he would not try to kill himself again. For a short time in 1927 he went on the stage and played the sinister role he had enacted in real life—that of hangman. But he couldn't stand the horror with which audiences regarded him, so he retired to live alone. And that is how he died—alone.

AX IS FACING

year be saved to the state by cutting two per cent from each $200 of salary in excess of $1,000 was advanced by Rep. L. R. Bostwick, Republican, London, farmer.

Asserting that all salary cuts should be limited to those public officials and employees listed in the so-called "higher brackets," Rep. George M. Forney, Republican, Hancock-co farmer, declared that "those receiving less than $1,000 a year cannot afford to take a cut."

Rep. Olney R. Gillogly, Zanesville, Democrat, proposed that salary cuts be on the following basis: Three per cent from those amounting to $750 a year, or less; five per cent from those ranging from $750 to $1,500; 10 per cent from those between $1,500 and $3,000; 15 per cent be taken from those ranging from $3,000 to $5,000; 20 per cent from those between $5,000 and $7,500, and that all salaries of $7,500 or more be reduced 25 per cent a year.

Objection to the Governor's bill, in its present form, on the ground that "these cuts would only save the utilities from paying their proper share of the taxes," was voiced by Rep. Charles F. Justice, Columbus, Democrat. He claimed that the Governor's scale of reductions would not help "the workers, farmers and home-owners."

A fervid plea against any reduction of wages of persons receiving less than $1,000 was made by Rep. John S. Pettit, Bellefontaine, Republican.

"When we cripple the purchasing power of those receiving a wage under $1,000, we are not enacting good legislation," Pettit declared.

We agree in part with the theory of the scientist who claims "Shakespeare was able to write 'Hamlet' because his body cells were not employed full time absorbing beefsteak." It is our understanding he wrote it for the price of a beefsteak e. o. d.

RAID 75 JOINTS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28.—The biggest series of raids since enactment of the national prohibition laws were staged here last night and today, a picked squad of 86 federal agents from eight states swooping down on approximately 75 alleged liquor joints.

Night clubs, roadhouses, cabarets, chicken dinner farms and soft drink places were visited by the raiders. Women in evening dress, men in tuxedos, others in sport and street dress were caught in the raided places.

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—December may see Marlene Dietrich leave the Paramount lot, but meanwhile there's another picture to be made—and rumor identifies it as an original story by Thompson Burtis called "Undesirable."

If she does the picture, the exotic star again will figure in a drama of the American scene. Her role will be the wife of a bully in a Texas oil-boom town; and the suspense of the plot will lie in whether she murdered her husband.

ACKERMAN SEEKS PROHIBITION VOTE

Block of Senate Wets Seek To 'Smoke Out' Non-committal Members.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—A prohibition fight developed today in the special salary-cutting session of the state legislature as a bloc of senate wets started a movement to "smoke out" non-committal drys and place both houses on record for campaign purposes. Leading members of the upper house admitted they have followed the lead of the major parties in adopting a franker stand on the liquor question and thrown their strength behind a joint resolution of Senator Joseph N. Ackerman (R) of Cleveland, introduced yesterday, which calls for a vote in 1933 on repeal of the state prohibition amendment.

Eventual defeat was conceded, but the wets were delighted at the confusion in the ranks of the drys when they learned they are to be embarrassed into voting one way or the other when the joint resolution comes up for action, probably tomorrow.

PEACE NOW REIGNS IN MINE DISTRICT

Ohio Collieries Accepts Peace Plan After Youth Is Slain By Guards.

ATHENS, Sept. 28.—Peace, coupled with promise of good business and capacity employment, returned to the coal fields today following announcement that the Ohio Collieries Co. has accepted Governor George White's settlement plan for its No. 267 mine at Rollister, where Clarnont Banfield, 18, was slain Monday.

Coming here today to abandon martial law at the 267 mine, following seizure of the property of Ohio National Guardsmen Monday, Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson predicted that "every miner will be back at work by the time snow flies in southern Ohio."

Henderson personally supervised the reopening of the mine this morning after W. I. Webb of Toledo, attorney for the Ohio Collieries Co., visited Governor White yesterday at Columbus and withdrew opposition to the governor's program. Militiamen were ordered to patrol the highways but the detachment of guardsmen was removed.

HEAR TAXIDRIVER IN GOODYEAR CASE

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—Surprise testimony of a taxi driver, who told of hearing murder threats was supplemented today by an alleged confession as the state climaxed its attempt to prove that William Goodyear, 61, killed his 27-year-old sweetheart, Mrs. Marie Legge, "for stepping out." Goodyear's purported admission that he killed Mrs. Legge in the bathroom of her home on April 17 was brought before the jury for consideration after state attorneys had introduced Harry Kapowitz as a witness. Goodyear has pleaded not guilty to murder charges on grounds of insanity.

REFUSE CITIZENSHIP

LIMA, Sept. 28.—Refusing to promise to bear arms in defense of the United States, John P. Klassen, instructor at Bluffton college, and his wife, Anna, today had been denied citizenship papers in common pleas court here.

Although he said he would be willing to serve the country as a non-combatant, declaring he served with the Russian Red Cross during the World War, Klassen's application for citizenship was turned down by Judge E. E. Everett, who cited a U. S. supreme court ruling.

O. E. S. HAS MEMORIAL SERVICE TUESDAY

An interesting feature of the regular meeting of the local Eastern Star chapter held Tuesday evening was an impressive memorial service in commemoration of J. Ernest Teare, a past patron, past grand patron and past most worthy grandpatron of the Order of the Eastern Star and of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Weaver, who were charter members of the local chapter. Mrs. Weaver was one of the past worthy matrons of the chapter and at one time held an office in the grand chapter of Ohio.

During the roll call of the departed members by Mrs. E. L. Price, secretary, Mrs. Opal Gehart, social conductress, made the floral tribute. While the chapter was being draped in black, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, associate matron, read Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" with sweet solemnity.

Prof. E. L. Gehart, worthy patron of the chapter, gave the address of the evening. This address was presented in a forceful and impressive manner and held the interest of everyone present. All realized that no mistake had been made in the choice of a speaker for this occasion.

At the close of the service, Mrs. Frank Kline Jr., sang "Open The Gates of the Temple." Mrs. Kline was in splendid voice and the exaltation and feeling with which she sang this wonderful selection imparted to each one present a renewed realization of a glorified resurrection. Appropriate music during these ceremonies was rendered by the pianist, Miss Carrie Johnson.

The October meeting of the chapter will be under the supervision of the October group of which Mrs. Hervey Sweyer is the leader.

Suicide of British Hangman Recalls Notable Executions

* * * * *

John Ellis, "The Man Who Walked Alone," Had Officiated At More Than Two Hundred Gallows Ceremonies.

SIR ROGER CASEMENT Mrs. EDITH THOMPSON

Driven to suicide by brooding on memories of the past that he could not wipe out after eight years of retirement, John Ellis, who for twenty-two years was England's public executioner, left behind him a sinister record that probably will never be equalled in Western civilization. Ellis, during his tenure of office, officiated at the executions of 203 condemned murderers. Among them was Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, who was convicted of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, a crime bearing a remarkable similarity to the recent du Bois case in Plymouth, Mass. It was Ellis, too, who fashioned the noose that ended the life of Sir Roger Casement, Irish baronet, who was British Consul in Berlin when the World War broke out. Casement was convicted of treason by conspiring to cause an armed revolt in Ireland and seeking German aid to that end. But it was the execution of Mrs. Edith Thompson, who with Frederick Bywaters was convicted of the murder of her husband, that broke the iron nerve of Ellis. Screaming and struggling, the woman had to be dragged to the scaffold and held on the trap while the hangman did his work. Ellis retired after that and attempted to live down his reputation. He attempted suicide with a revolver in 1924, but recovered and promised he would not try to kill himself again. For a short time in 1927 he went on the stage and played the sinister role he had enacted in real life—that of hangman. But he couldn't stand the horror with which audiences regarded him, so he retired to live alone. And that is how he died—alone.

year be saved to the state by cutting two per cent from each $200 of salary in excess of $1,000 was advanced by Rep. L. R. Bostwick, Republican, London, farmer. Ascertaining that all salary cuts should be limited to those public officials and employees listed in the so-called "higher brackets," Rep. George M. Forney, Republican, Hancock-co farmer, declared that "those receiving less than $1,000 a year cannot afford to take a cut."

Rep. Olney R. Gillogly, of Zanesville, Democrat, proposed that salary cuts be on the following basis: Three per cent from those amounting to $750 a year, or less; five per cent from those ranging from $750 to $1,500; 10 per cent from those between $1,500 and $3,000; 15 per cent be taken from those ranging from $3,000 to $5,000; 20 per cent from those between $5,000 and $7,500, and that all salaries of $7,500 or more be reduced 25 per cent a year.

Objection to the Governor's bill, in its present form, on the ground that "these cuts would only save the utilities from paying their proper share of the taxes," was voiced by Rep. Charles E. Justice, Columbus, Democrat. He claimed that the Governor's scale of reductions would not help the workers, farmers and home-owners.

A fervid plea against any reduction of wages of persons receiving less than $1,000 was made by Rep. John S. Pettit, Bellefontaine, Republican. "When we cripple the purchasing power of those receiving a wage under $1,000, we are not enacting good legislation," Pettit declared.

We agree in part with the theory of the scientist who claims Shakespeare was able to write "Hamlet" because his body cells were not employed full time absorbing beefsteak. It is our understanding he wrote it for the price of a beefsteak, e. o. d.

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—December may see Marlene Dietrich leave the Paramount lot, but meanwhile there's another picture to be made—and rumor identifies it as an original story by Thompson Burtis called "Undesirable."

If she does the picture, the exotic star again will figure in a drama of the American scene. Her role will be the wife of a bully in a Texas oil-boom town; and the suspense of the plot will lie in whether she murdered her husband.

ACKERMAN SEEKS PROHIBITION VOTE

Bloc of Senate Wets Seek To 'Smoke Out' Non-committal Members.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—A prohibition fight developed today in the special salary-cutting session of the state legislature as a bloc of senate wets started a movement to "smoke out" non-committal dries and place both houses on record for campaign purposes. Leading members of the upper house admitted they have followed the lead of the major parties in adopting a franker stand on the liquor question and thrown their strength behind a joint resolution of Senator Joseph N. Ackerman (R) of Cleveland, introduced yesterday, which calls for a vote in 1933 on repeal of the state prohibition amendment.

Eventual defeat was conceded, but the wets were delighted at the confusion in the ranks of the dries when they learned they are to be embarrassed into voting one way or the other when the joint resolution comes up for action, probably tomorrow.

PEACE NOW REIGNS IN MINE DISTRICT

Ohio Collieries Accepts Peace Plan After Youth Is Slain By Guards.

ATHENS, Sept. 28.—Peace, coupled with promise of good business and capacity employment, returned to the coal fields today following announcement that the Ohio Collieries Co. has accepted Governor George White's settlement plan for its No. 267 mine at Rollister, where Clarmont Banfield, 18, was slain Monday.

Coming here today to abandon martial law at the 267 mine, following seizure of the property of Ohio National Guardsmen Monday, Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson predicted that "every miner will be back at work by the time snow flies in southern Ohio."

Henderson personally supervised the reopening of the mine this morning after W. I. Webb of Toledo, attorney for the Ohio Collieries Co., visited Governor White yesterday at Columbus and withdrew opposition to the governor's program. Militiamen were ordered to patrol the highways but the detachment of guardsmen was removed.

HEAR TAXIDRIVER IN GOODYEAR CASE

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—Surprise testimony of a taxi driver, who told of hearing murder threats was supplemented today by an alleged confession as the state climaxed its attempt to prove that William Goodyear, 61, killed his 27-year-old sweetheart, Mrs. Marie Legge, "for stepping out."

Goodyear's purported admission that he killed Mrs. Legge in the bathroom of her home on April 17 was brought before the jury for consideration after state attorneys had introduced Harry Kapowitz as a witness.

Goodyear has pleaded not guilty to murder charges on grounds of insanity.

REFUSE CITIZENSHIP

LIMA, Sept. 28.—Refusing to promise to bear arms in defense of the United States, John P. Klassen, instructor at Bluffton college, and his wife, Anna, today had been denied citizenship papers in common pleas court here.

Although he said he would be willing to serve the country as a non-combatant, declaring he served with the Russian Red Cross during the World War, Klassen's application for citizenship was turned down by Judge E. E. Everett, who cited a U. S. supreme court ruling.
